The month of August is generally egarded as the most critical month n the growing season as far as the and where the rainfall is deficient the crop undergoes rapid deterioration. This year, owing to the backwardness of the crop and the low vitality which the plant has shown during the whole growing period to date, the hot spells of August have been looked forward to with more than the usual apprehension. The past week has been a period of anbroken high temperature and insufficient rain ranging from timely howers in the eastern belt to insuffi o rain at all west of the Mississippi iver. In Texas the dry spell has assumed the character of a veritable drouth, the effect of which has been aggravated by the very high temper ature recorded from the Lone Star State. The cotton crop has commenced to show the effects of this ombination of adverse conditions, as t has ceased to grow and is shedding with bolls opening prematurely Elsewhere than in Texas the crop has made good progress, although toward the end of the week there was mplaint of the drouth spreading to Arkansas and even to north Louisiana. In no portion of the cotton belt is the erop reported as up to the average condition of last season for this date while in Texas there has apparently been deterioration. While many claim that the situation in Texas is beyond Texas is The Garden spot of the repair, conservative opinion does not hold that view, and good rains would in all probability work a wonderful change in a short time Even accepting the best reports as to the progress being made by the erop in the belt generally, the plant is so far behind in size and maturity for this time of the season that a late frost is now accepted as an absolute necessity if a fairly full crop is to be
